PERFORMANCE ART

The Paul Getty Museum launched a project where they encourage the public to dress up as their favourite work of art. Pupils/families dress up as works of Art.

ROCK OF KINDNESS!

If you are able, find a pebble, a smooth pebble and paint/ draw with felt-tips something inspirational on it! If you add #DoverCollegeArt and an inspirational message on the back. You can leave it somewhere on campus when you are next able to.

Pebble painting, or “rocking”, is a craze that seems to have begun in the US with Megan Murphy’s The Kindness Rocks Project. She came up with the idea after collecting heart-shaped stones and pieces of sea-smoothed glass from the beach, seeing them as “rare treasures or signs and messages” from her deceased parents. “Finding them made me happy and I wanted to provide others with a similar experience.” Now, a thriving international community of amateur artists decorates rocks before hiding them in public places.

If you don’t have paints – use felt-tips or similar. You could use nail varnish or any clear varnish to help keep the image/message clear and waterproof.
