Sailors in the Victorian era made Macramé objects while not busy at sea, and sold or bartered them when they landed, thus spreading the art to places like China and the New World.

From modern home wares to chic accessories such as friendship bracelets, macramé is the latest trend in the yarn world! Forget needles and hooks – you'll just need to master a few key knots to start creating stunning macrame pieces to brighten up your home or your room.

There are many online sites which introduce and teach you how to do this skill, but maybe try the following one to get you started...
